

FIND OUT HOW
TODAY'S CARS ARE GREENER THAN EVER

AUTO INNOVATION

BREAKING NEWS Brown arrives on Capitol Hill, meets with senators Court rolls back campaign spending limits Leading indicators jump 1.1 percent in December McCain says he hopes health care bill is dead Edwards says he's father of Rielle Hunter's child Afghan villagers say civilians killed in raid Signs point to Friday farewell for Conan O'Brien Wall Street regulations still doable in new Senate Djokovic, Davydenko into 3rd round; Ivanovic out

January 21, 2010

Search

Advanced Search

Log In | Register

Connect

HOME US WORLD POLITICS BUSINESS TECH ENTERTAINMENT LIFE SPORTS OPINION RESEARCH VIDEO

DC TRAWLER SEND TIPS

EXCLUSIVE: Republican Scott Brown has raised at least one million dollars every day this week

By Alex Pappas — The Daily Caller 01/14/10 at 4:58 pm

While poll numbers show a Republican win is plausible in the state where Sen. Ted Kennedy long served, neither the RNC nor NRSC has sent much money north. (AP)

Knowledgeable sources in Massachusetts tell The Daily Caller that Republican candidate for Senate, Scott Brown, has raised at least $1 million dollars every day this week, most of it online.

Although Brown's campaign touted Monday's money-bomb fundraiser that brought in $1.3 million dollars, the campaign declined to confirm totals for other days this week.

"I can't comment on figures," said spokesman Felix Browne.

While poll numbers show a Republican win is plausible in the state where Sen. Ted Kennedy long served, neither the RNC nor NRSC has sent much money north. Given the fundraising success Brown apparently has had with grassroots supporters over the Internet, cash infusions from the national Republican party may not be necessary.

Brown will face Democrat Martha Coakley in the special election for the Massachusetts Senate seat on Tuesday.

UPDATE – 5:26 P.M. – President Obama has recorded a video in support of Coakley, citing "opponents of change ... pouring money into" Massachusetts as the reason why the race has been moved from leaning Democratic to a toss up Thursday by both the Cook Political Report and the Rothenberg Political Report.

Obama says in the video that the health care reform bill "and other fights will rest on one vote in the United States Senate."

"That's why what happens Tuesday in Massachusetts is so important," he says.